

PRESS RELEASE

Brussels Auto Show Advisory Board Proudly Welcomes Automotive Icon Luc Bontemps

Brussels Auto Show Advisory Board is pleased to announce the appointment of Luc Bontemps, a distinguished automotive leader and former CEO of Febiac, as a valuable addition to its esteemed team.

With a remarkable career spanning decades, Luc Bontemps has left an indelible mark on the automotive landscape in Brussels and beyond. His visionary leadership, strategic acumen, and dedication to driving innovation have earned him a well-deserved reputation as an industry trailblazer.

"We are honored to have Luc Bontemps join our Advisory Board," said Eric-Mark Huitema, Chairman of the Advisory Board of the Brussels Auto Show. "Luc's unparalleled expertise and profound influence in the automotive sector, coupled with his commitment to advancing the industry, align perfectly with our mission to create a dynamic and enriching platform for automotive enthusiasts and professionals."

As a member of the Advisory Board, Luc Bontemps will contribute his invaluable insights to shape the future direction of the Brussels Auto Show. His extensive knowledge of the automotive ecosystem, combined with his dedication to fostering industry growth, will play a pivotal role in enhancing the show's offerings and engagement with a global audience. Luc Bontemps expressed his enthusiasm about this new role, stating, "I am delighted to join Brussels Auto Show Advisory Board and be a part of an initiative that embraces the digital era while celebrating the rich heritage of the automotive world. I look forward to collaborating with fellow industry leaders to create a platform that resonates with enthusiasts, professionals, and newcomers alike."

Brussels Auto Show remains committed to providing a premier online destination that showcases the latest developments, trends, and innovations in the automotive realm. With Luc Bontemps on board, the Advisory Board is poised to drive even greater value and relevance to its audience.
